SERIOUS FRAUDS IN CINCINNATI.

Secretary Cowdin, who has been assigned for duty in Cincinnati, City has been engaged for the last two weeks in investigating frauds which have been practiced upon the Government in that city. The examination was specially directed to the Frost and Second Districts. The investigation was not ordered upon any particular report, but was the result of a general suspicion that frauds were being practiced upon the Government by the officers of the Internal Revenue Department in that city. The examination was carefully and thoroughly conducted, and the result has been the discovery of the most extensive frauds that have been brought to light since the establishment of the Internal Revenue system. It is a very sad fact that the most extensive frauds have been perpetrated by officers of the Government themselves. The investigation was first commenced in the Frost district. The books of Collector Frost were examined, and the result was the discovery of the most extensive frauds. The examination was then extended to the Second District. The investigation was conducted with the greatest secrecy, and the result has been

Three notorious Gentlemen, named Frank Hill, Thomas Murphy and Fitzgerald, made last night an attempt to escape from their prison. They were duly and properly very much Cast Progress [illegible]

Officer Hollenbeck was arrested on a charge of [illegible] and locked up in the Central Station. He was put in the cell with Murphy and Hill. Murphy was in for [illegible] and Hill for [illegible]. Hollenbeck was also put in the cell with them. Hollenbeck was a powerful man, and Murphy and Hill knew it. They therefore concluded that they would not attempt to escape while he was in the cell with them. They waited until he was asleep, and then commenced to work at the bars. They succeeded in getting one bar loose, and then awoke Hollenbeck, and told him that they were going to escape. Hollenbeck told them that they could not escape while he was in the cell with them, and that they had better not attempt it. They, however, persisted in their attempt, and Hollenbeck, finding that they would not desist, called for assistance. Officers Hoffman and Hall responded to the call, and found Hollenbeck and the prisoners struggling. Hoffman and Hall separated the parties, and Hollenbeck was taken out of the cell. Hill and Murphy then made a rush for the door, and succeeded in getting out of the cell. Hoffman and Hall were in the way, and Hill and Murphy knocked them down and escaped. Hoffman and Hall then arrested Hollenbeck, Hill and Murphy, and locked them up in the cell from which they had escaped. Hollenbeck was then released, and Hill and Murphy were locked up in the cell in which they had been confined before. Hoffman and Hall were injured by the fall, but not seriously.
